

Lapu lapu

Chapter 1(Child hood)

Companion: Here we are, You are now in the Mactan.

Lapu-Lapu: What am I going to do?

Companion: You need to train in order to be a great leader of this place. Can you do it?

Lapu-Lapu: I will try.

Companion: It seems like your father is calling you. Go now.

Lapu-lapu: Thanks.

Quest 1.1 Go to your father

Kugsano(LapuLapu's father): It took you so long to respond to my calling.

Lapu-Lapu: Sorry father, do you need something father?

Kugsano: You know that you are the one who will inherit my throne and rule this place. However, I don't plan to give this place to those who dont deserve it. You need to prove to me that you are worthy to be a ruler of this place.

Lapu-Lapu: Yes father. I will prove to you that I am worthy to rule this place. What do you want me to do my father?

Kugsano: Learn how to farm, hunt and gather. You need this if you really want to be a Datu of this place.

Lapu-Lapu: Yes. I will do it

Quest 1.2 Collect Seeds (To be used in farming)

Quest 1.3 Hunt for the foods of your clan (Mostly the thinks that they hunt are aquatic animal, can be the boss of chapter 1)

Cutscene

Lapu-Lapu learned how to hunt and farm. He leads his crew in Hunting. He knows how to raise crops like a good farmer. Proving his skills worthy of being a Datu of his place

End of Chapter 1

Chapter 2(Chieftain of Mactan)

(Blackscreen)

Time passed and you are a proud elder of your clan. You prosper the land you're standing on. You proved to the masses that you are capable of being a leader of your tribe. The time has come.

Kugsano: I do think it is the time for me to pass the responsibility to take care of this land to you, my son.

Lapu-lapu: It is my pleasure to be the Datu of this place.

Kugsano: But before that I need you to defeat the monster of the sea. Finishing that will grant you the mark that signifies your experiences, knowledge and strength.

Lapu-lapu: I will slain the monster and be the warrior worthy of your throne.

Quest 2.1(Finding the Monster)More likely it is also aquatic creature

Quest 2.2(Defeat the monster)

After defeating the Monster. You came back with pride and the people celebrated for your success.

Kugsano: I am so proud of you my son.

Lapu-lapu: Thanks my father.

Kugsano orders the people of Mactan to gather.

Kugsano: My fellow people. Today is the day that I will pass down my throne to my son. Lapu lapu.

(crowd cheers)

Kugsano: He shows me that he is capable of being a leader. A Datu of Mactan. Lets celebrate for the recognition of the new Datu of Mactan.

(crowd cheers once again)

Cutscene:

Lapu lapu is being recognize as a Datu of Mactan

End of Chapter 2

Chapter 3(Conflict in Mactan)

(Blackscreen)

As Ferdinand Magellan's expedition was navigating the unfamiliar waters of the Philippines in their quest to find a westward route to the Spice Islands, a sudden storm and navigational error forced them to land on the shores of Samar, a fateful encounter that would forever alter the course of history. Stranded on this unfamiliar island, Magellan and his crew came into contact with Datu Rajah Humabon, a local chieftain known for his wisdom and leadership.

In a humble exchange of words beneath the swaying palm trees, Magellan and Humabon forged an unexpected bond. Magellan, intrigued by the culture and people of the Philippines, spoke earnestly to Humabon about his faith in Christianity. He shared tales of the teachings of Jesus Christ, emphasizing love, peace, and salvation. With a gentle conviction, he encouraged Humabon to consider embracing this new faith, believing it would bring prosperity and unity to his people.

Magellan: Rajah Humabon, I believe Christianity can bring prosperity and unity to your people. Will you consider accepting this faith?

Humabon: I'm intrigued, but change is not easy. Can you assure me it won't erase our culture?

Magellan: Christianity can coexist with your traditions. It's about finding peace and love within your beliefs. Let me baptize you and your family to start this journey together.

Humabon: Very well, let's take that step. Baptize us, Magellan, and may it bring the promised blessings and unity.

As Christianity took root in the Philippines following Rajah Humabon's conversion, it began to spread like wildfire, transforming the lives of many and shaping the destiny of the archipelago. Humabon, deeply inspired by his newfound faith, became a fervent advocate for Christianity, using his influence to encourage neighboring chieftains to embrace this religion of hope and salvation.

One day, Humabon turned his attention to Lapu-Lapu, the powerful chieftain of Mactan Island, known for his defiance and strong-willed nature. Humabon believed that if Lapu-Lapu could be persuaded to accept Christianity, it would bring unity and peace to the entire region.

Humabon: Chief Lapu-Lapu, I come to you not as an adversary, but as a brother in faith. The teachings of Christianity have brought profound blessings to my people, and I believe they can do the same for yours.

Lapu-Lapu: Humabon, I've heard of your newfound faith, but I have no desire to abandon our traditions. We are warriors, and we will remain true to our ways.

Humabon: Christianity does not ask you to abandon your warrior spirit, Lapu-Lapu. It merely offers a path to peace and unity alongside our existing beliefs.

Lapu-Lapu: I respect your choice, Humabon, but I will not follow. My people have their own path, and we will not yield to foreign ways.

Cutscene

Despite Humabon's heartfelt efforts, Lapu-Lapu remained resolute in his decision to reject Christianity, choosing to uphold the traditions and beliefs of his people. This marked a division between the two great chieftains, as the spread of Christianity continued throughout the Philippines, shaping the course of history and culture in the archipelago.

End of chapter 3

Chapter 4(Battle of Mactan)